

CASEC OFFICIAL SCORE REPORT

(Performance Feedback)

NAME
ID		DATE	2012/09/14

● Test Score Check your CASEC score

SECTION	SECTION 1 Vocabulary	SECTION 2 Conversational Expression	SECTION 3 Listening	SECTION 4 Dictation	CASEC TOTAL
SCORE	190 250	108 250	145 250	127 250	570 1000

● Overall Proficiency Level Your proficiency level assessed by CASEC scores

CASEC Level	Comments
AA 880~1000	Capable of communicating on topics in daily life and a broader range of social situations.
A 760~879	Has substantial vocabulary and flexibility of expression needed to communicate on topics in a broader range of situations including business topics and current issues. Has the skills to use various vocabulary and expressions in an appropriate context. Is capable of interpreting direct and indirect speech acts, and also inferring the scope of conversation.
B 600~759	Capable of communicating on topics in daily life and basic social situations. Has sufficient vocabulary and flexibility of expression needed to communicate on topics in daily and basic social life. Is capable of grasping the main idea and details of conversation initiated by native speakers of English.
C 450~599	Capable of communicating on general topics faced in daily life. Has vocabulary and flexibility of expression required to undertake basic communication in daily life, but may hesitate at times due to a lack of knowledge of words and expressions. Is capable of understanding the gist of conversation on daily topics.
D 390~449	Capable of communicating on basic topics in daily life. Has basic vocabulary and expressions required to understand the topics but may have difficulties carrying out a conversation. Has the capability to understand parts of conversation, but does not have the proficiency to comprehend the entire meaning.
E 0~389	Capable of making beginner level greetings and responding to simple questions. Needs to enrich vocabulary and power of expression as well as improve listening skills to communicate in English.

● Proficiency Level by Section Your detailed proficiency level by section assessed by CASEC section score

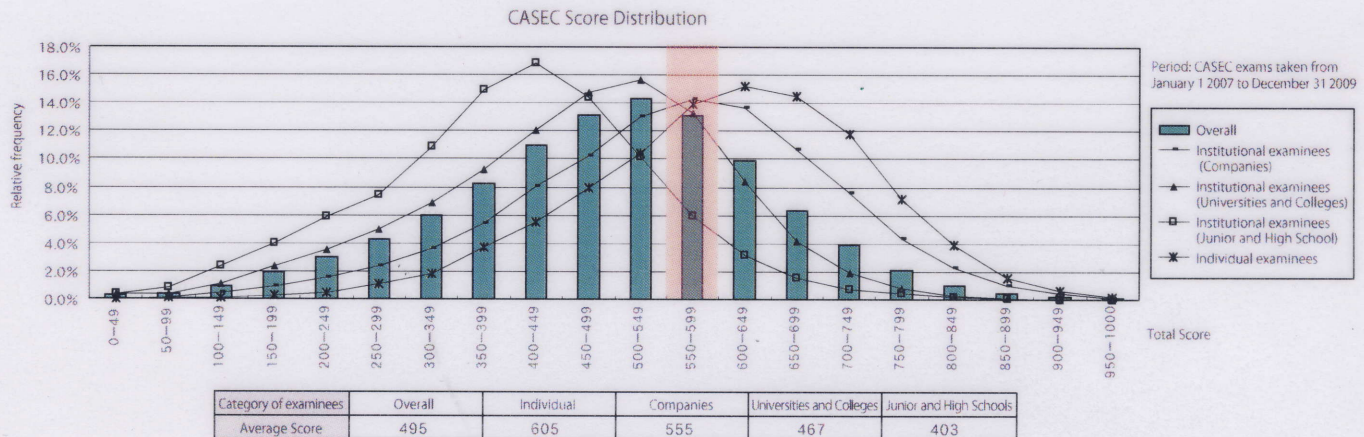

CASEC Section Score	Section1 Vocabulary	Section2 Conversational Expression	Section3 Listening	Section4 Dictation
186~250	Have enough vocabulary to read newspapers and magazines and to fully understand the contents.	Have mostly mastered the English expressions necessary for daily and social life.	Can grasp the gist of native speakers' fast-paced and relatively long conversations on daily and social matters.	Can catch the details of native speakers' fast-paced and relatively long conversations on daily and social matters.
151~185	Have vocabulary to grasp the rough idea of a story and to communicate with native speakers.	Can understand the basic expressions needed in daily life as well as the basic expressions exchanged in social life.	Can comprehend the general ideas of native speakers' conversations on relatively broad range of topics if spoken at normal speed.	Can catch the essential points and details of native speakers' conversations on relatively broad range of topics if spoken at normal speed.
116~150	Have basic vocabulary needed in daily life, for example, in communicating one's own ideas.	Sufficiently understand the simple expressions necessary in daily life.	Can comprehend the general ideas of native speakers' daily conversations spoken at normal speed.	Can catch the keywords and their related information of native speakers' daily conversations spoken at normal speed.
96~115	Have the most basic vocabulary (one that is learned mostly at Japanese junior high school).	Can understand the basic expressions (one that is learned mostly at Japanese junior high school) exchanged in daily life.	Can guess some parts of the general idea (such as topics and scenes) of native speakers' daily conversation if spoken slowly.	Can catch the keywords and specifics of native speakers' daily conversations if spoken slowly.
0~95	Can understand familiar words used in daily life.	Can understand simple greetings, familiar topics in daily life, and elementary expressions.	Can understand basic greetings and guess what is being talked about in native speakers' slow conversations.	Can catch familiar words found in daily life such as numbers and the days of the week mentioned in native speakers' slow conversations.

CASEC OFFICIAL SCORE REPORT (Performance Feedback)

Comparison with Other Examinees of CASEC

Below shows where your score is among the other CASEC examinees. There will be a difference in distribution depending on the category of the examinees. Use it as a reference when setting your next goal.

How to Improve Your English Proficiency

To achieve further improvement in your English proficiency, consider the advice below.

Vocabulary	In order to enrich your vocabulary further, you should learn specialized terms in fields such as medicine, economics and politics. Instead of studying words in isolation, practice word mapping, which involves making diagrams of associations between words in similar fields (for example, doctor - prescription).
Conversational Expression	Now you need to progress to high school level expressions used in everyday life. Try to improve your comprehension of entire conversations. When you learn a new expression, consider both the meanings of the words and the way in which they are used.
Listening	In order to progress to the next level and understand the finer details of the conversation, you need to focus on words with less emphasis as well as words that are emphasized. Read scripts while listening to spoken text and try to identify the unstressed words. Then practice your pronunciation, paying particular attention to the difference between stressed and unstressed words.

Compare Your Score with Other Exams

TOEIC® (Score estimate)	495
TOEFL (Score estimate)	452

TOEIC® is a registered trademark of TOEIC®.

TOEFL is a registered trademark of TOEFL.